

Photo by Lee Hall

Rami Saari has published 7 books of poetry in Hebrew, and 56 books (poetry and fiction) translated into Hebrew from Finnish, Greek, Spanish, Catalan, Portuguese, Hungarian and Albanian. His publications in anthologies and periodicals are far too numerous to count. His poetry has been translated into many languages.

THE FIVE-COLLEGE FACULTY SEMINAR FOR LITERARY TRANSLATION HOSTS

A Conversation With Rami Saari

THURSDAY, APRIL 4, 5:00 P.M.

THE POETRY CENTER,
WRIGHT HALL, SMITH COLLEGE

Internationally acclaimed Israeli poet, translator, editor, critic, linguist, and distinguished poet in residence, Rami Saari, will talk about what happens

When Poets Translate Poets: Going Far and Getting Closer

Dr. Saari's visit is sponsored by the Smith College Office of the Provost and Dean of the Faculty, the Neilson Endowed Fund, the Comparative Literature Program, the Department of Spanish and Portuguese, the Global Studies Center, the Program in Jewish Studies, and the Smith College Lecture Committee; the Interdisciplinary Studies Institute at the University of Massachusetts; the Humanities at Hampshire College and the Five-College Faculty Seminar for Literary Translation.

There will be a supper/reception following the seminar presentation.